

MRS. GOULD GIVEN A DIVORCE TODAY

HAB ALIMONY OF $36,000 A YEAR
TO LIVE ON UNDER COURT RULING.

THE TESTIMONY FAVORS HER

Her Relations With Dustin Farnum
Were Not Objected to by Her Husband—Not Proven Drunk.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, June 25.—Justice Dowling today granted Mrs. Howard Gould a separation from her husband with alimony of $36,000 a year. Justice Dowling in his decision said all the evidence was in favor of Mrs. Gould, and that the conduct of Mrs. Gould, when she was alleged to have been intoxicated might have been caused by excitement. The justice disposed of allegations concerning Mrs. Gould's meetings with Dustin Farnum by saying they all occurred since Mr. and Mrs. Gould had separated, and that Gould had never objected to them. A stay of thirty days in the execution of judgment was granted.

NORWEGIAN POET AT DEATH'S DOOR

BJORNSON STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS—LIFE HANGS IN BALANCE.

WAS GREATEST REFORMER

Foremost Novelist And Writer And Most Eloquent Speaker of Scandinavia—Had Turbulent Career.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Christiania, June 25.—The active career of Bjornstjerne Bjornson is ended, and all Norway mourns as a result. When word was received from Laurevik that the famous poet and novelist had been seized with paralysis on June 5, the people realized that his brilliant pen would write no more. And it was as if a national calamity had befallen them. To the world at large Bjornson has been known as a delightful novelist.

NORWAY'S GREAT POET NEAR DEATH'S DOOR.
Bjornstjerne Bjornson.

But to the Norwegians he has been for more than that. He has been not only their national poet and their foremost novelist and dramatist, but he has been their strongest intellectual force. No man ever loved Norway more than he; no man ever did more than he for her progress and prosperity. To promote her welfare he unworldly applied all the powers of his great genius.

Bjornson's career from the very beginning of his student days was a turbulent one. A republican of republicans, his early years were spent principally in dodging jails and writing problem books. Years ago he was given a jail sentence for treason, but escaped and fled to Germany.

This episode in the career of the famous poet had its origin in a bitter dispute with the late King Oscar. The latter, as is well known, had literary pretensions of no mean order, and figured extensively as a poet, an author and a playwright.

Bjornson, having learned that King Oscar had enlisted in the most meretricious and unbecoming manner one of his plays, immediately flew into a great rage, regarding it not in the light of an expression of opinion of the sovereign, but merely as a piece of effrontery on the part of a jealous and soured rival. He at once proceeded to challenge King Oscar to a duel and to grant him satisfaction on the field of honor.

This was more than King Oscar could stand, democratic and unaffiliated though he was, and accordingly he gave orders for the prosecution of Bjornson on a charge of lese majeste. But the poet was not obliged to pay the penalty for his offense, for he fled to Germany and remained there until 1882.

But his exile was apparently not to affect him seriously, for when he returned to Christiania he at once resumed his anti-government agitation as well as his novel writing.

Bjornson's novels were epoch-making in Scandinavian literature and proved a source of inspiration to the Norwegian people. His first great novel, "Synnove Solbakken," was published in 1857. This was followed by other stories giving an idealized picture of peasant life. These stories have been a source of pleasure and profit to the Norwegian people. Peasants read them and learned to know their better selves. Others read them and learned to know the peasant and to appreciate the fact that under the coarse homeliness of the peasant there may be a heart that beats warmly for the high and noble things of life.

SUMMER CAPITAL READY FOR TAFT

BEVERLY, MASS., PREPARED FOR COMING OF PRESIDENT.

MANY CHANGES NECESSARY

To Transform Town So As To Meet
Requirements Of Corps Of Officials and Clerks To Arrive There.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Beverly, Mass., June 25.—Here as well as on Woodbury's point nearly everything is in readiness for the arrival of President Taft and his official staff, within a week or so. With the arrival of the President and his small army of clerks and officials Beverly will become the summer capital of the nation, with a fair prospect of holding this post of honor until the close of the season, when official duties will make the presence of President Taft in Washington imperative.

It was no small task to transform this usually rather quiet little town into the national capital, even for a few months. The houses and grounds which President Taft rented from Admiral Evans, although well kept and in excellent condition, had to be rearranged for the exigencies of an executive mansion. The driveways and paths were resurfaced, the trees trimmed, the lawns put in perfect condition and hundreds of electric lights distributed throughout the grounds.

For the greater convenience of the President a spur track was constructed at the Montserrat station, which is considerably nearer to the Evans estate than Beverly. This track will be used by the President's train and it has been arranged that all guests invited by the President will leave the trains at Montserrat station instead of going to Beverly.

The house is in perfect order and is ready to receive the furniture which will be sent on from Washington within a few days. The house will shelter only the family of the President and Secretary Carpenter, while the numerous clerks, stenographers, secret men, stablemen, etc., will have to find quarters in Beverly, where the executive offices will be located. Secretary Carpenter has rented several connected rooms in the Board of Trade building on Cabot street, which have been arranged and fitted up for their use as executive offices. The building is modern and the rooms are large, light and airy. The building is only about twenty minutes walk from the Evans estate near enough to be conveniently reached by the President, should he wish to walk to his office for exercise. One of the smaller rooms of the suite has been equipped as a telephone office, another as a telephone and a third as a "service" as the headquarters of the Secret Service officers, who will be stationed here during President Taft's sojourn at the Evans cottage.

The private harbor on the Evans estate, which was constructed for the accommodation of the President, is practically completed and will be in readiness to receive the President's official yacht, which will be anchored there in case the President and his family should choose to take short cruises up and down the coast.

The location of the Evans cottage is ideal. Within fifty feet of the front porch of the house is the ocean, where the surf rolls incessantly over a wide stretch of beach. The view from the cottage is one of the finest on the coast and includes the beautiful coast line of the Salem shore. Back of the house are the old woods and the house is surrounded by beautiful estates owned by wealthy men who have their summer homes along the North Shore.

If the President wishes to go golfing, fishing, swimming, motoring or horseback riding, he will be able to do so under the most ideal conditions and there are in the vicinity scores of beautiful places attractive from a scenic and interesting from a historical point of view, should the President desire to take short outings. Many members of the diplomatic corps have their summer homes in the immediate neighborhood of the Evans estate.

The question, whether it will be possible to enforce strict privacy of the grounds in case the President and his family should desire it, still weighs the local authorities a little, but it is expected that some way will be found to solve the problem. The trouble is that between the cottage and the beach, connecting with the public bathing beach, known as Independence park. It is claimed that this right of way cannot be closed to the public, but the local police will undoubtedly see to it that this shore road is not used too much to the annoyance of the President's family.

The President's mail will be received at the Beverly post office and there inspected by a postal inspector, before it is delivered at the President's summer home. Most of it will arrive in sealed bags and will not have to be sorted and handled by the local postal clerks. A score of secret service men will keep a strict watch upon the President's baggage and grounds and upon the executive offices in the Board of Trade building.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Green Bay, Wis., June 25.—William Kage, a United States express messenger, who conferred to having robbed the company of $5,000, appeared in municipal court this morning and the case was adjourned until July 10th. He will probably plead guilty in a short time. Kage says the temptation of handling such an amount of money was passed through his hands was too strong for him and he could not withstand it.

MISSISSIPPI KNIGHTS OF THE GRIP IN JACKSON

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Jackson, Miss., June 25.—Delegations of United Commercial Travelers came in this morning from all parts of the state. Meridian, Vicksburg, Natchez and other cities are well represented.

The convention of the Grand Council opened in the Century Theatre this morning with addresses of welcome by Mayor A. C. Crowder and Judge Garland G. Lyell. After luncheon the convention went into an executive session and later in the afternoon the visitors were treated to an "amateur" ride over the city. Great preparations are being made for the big parade tomorrow.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Entertained at Luncheon: Mrs. E. R. Connors entertained a company of forty ladies at an elaborate one o'clock luncheon given at her home, 302 North First street, yesterday afternoon.

Joe McDonald Fined: Joe McDonald, of Beloit, who once served a term in prison for habitual drunkenness and who, on a charge of venue from Judge Rosa to Judge Elford, was committed to the county farm, from which he made good his escape in short order, appeared in court this morning and admitted that he was intoxicated last evening. He also stated that he had a fine job at the Fulton dam under Charles Knox, a very nice foreman, and after due consideration of the case he was allowed to go on payment of a fine and costs amounting to $1.10.

On Trip to Oconomowoc: Mr. and Mrs. George S. Parker and Judge and Mrs. Charles L. Elford departed this afternoon on an automobile tour of the Oconomowoc lakes. They expect to return sometime Monday.

U. C. T. Banquet Souvenir: Charles Gage today received from his old friend, Stanley J. Thompson, of Green Bay, Wis., former resident of Janesville and retiring Supreme Comptroller of the United Commercial Travelers—a souvenir menu card of a big banquet given at the Chittenden hotel at Columbus, Ohio, on June 23. The entire cover of the banquet card is devoted to a very excellent engraving of Mr. Thompson's engaging countenance. He is now traveling out of Chicago for the Smith & Wallace Shoe company.

Miss Reus Won Applause: At the commencement exercises of Holy Rosary academy at Corlies, Miss Rosary Reus, daughter of Philip Reus of this city, won high praise for her piano accompaniment to a rendition by a select chorus of Behar's "Sonntagsmorgen."

Luncheon and Bridge Party: Mrs. W. F. Palmer entertained twelve ladies at a luncheon and bridge party at her home on Court street yesterday afternoon. The honors at cards were carried off by Mrs. Harry Morrell.

False Alarm: A false alarm was turned in yesterday noon from box 13 at the corner of Ravine and Pearl streets. A boy playing with the alarm box was the cause of the call.

Inspected Schools: The Board of Education yesterday made their annual round of inspection of the schools of the city. Numerous minor improvements and repairs, which are needed will be commenced soon.

To Attend Convention: Superintendent of Schools H. C. Duell and Mrs. Duell, Miss Katherine Wladich, Miss Mae Foley, and Professor L. F. Iahr, of the high school faculty will attend the National Educational convention in Denver, commencing July 3. Miss Mary Armstrong will, during the summer vacation, take a trip to the Pacific coast.

NEW TEACHER WILL BE ATHLETIC COACH

Professor Theodore Knudson, Who Takes Miss Foley's Place, Will Manage High School Athletics.

High school athletes and those interested in the athletic events at the high school will rejoice to learn that next year there will be a member of the faculty who will have charge of the school athletics. Prof. Knudson, graduate of Beloit college, who comes to take the place made vacant by the departure of Miss Foley, besides being instructor, will be the coach of all lines of athletic work.

During the past year, the interest in outdoor and indoor sports and games has been on the wane, and the school has made practically no showing. It was not entirely the fault of the school nor of the boys, although more enthusiasm might have been shown, but the great trouble lay in the lack of someone to take charge of athletics.

During the football season, Physical Director Birch of the Y. M. C. A. drilled the team, but one defeat and the early hour at which they had to appear to get in their practice considerably slackened the enthusiasm of a number of the players and it was impossible to get enough to turn out for practice to make up an eleven.

In the line of basketball, the school made a slightly better showing, a number taking sufficient interest to appear at the practices. While the team suffered more defeats than they won victories, yet the showing they made at the last game when they brought down in the dust the heretofore undefeated team of the Prospect high school served in a manner to lessen the feeling of chagrin at former losses. Prof. Val Iahr was the one most concerned in leading the boys in basketball. Financially, the team made out better this year than is usual.

Track work this spring was a complete failure. Generally a pretty good team has been found among the youths of the school and Janesville athletes have competed well and made good records. In meets with other schools of the state held at Madison each year. This year the team failed to materialize because of a lack of a coach, and beyond a few spasmodic hours of practice in the gymnasium, nothing was done toward getting one. Last year Prof. William Vlymen coached the boys, practicing with them faithfully, but on account of his recent illness he was unable to help them this spring.

However, joy springs anew in the breasts of the enthusiasts over the announcement that the school will next year have a coach and hope arises with joy, that the showing made next year will be better than any previous year.

MRS. JAMES DALTON TO ASK FOR BAR LICENSE

But May Not Be Able to Obtain It Until After the Others Are Granted.

Mrs. James Dalton visited the city hall this morning and stated that it would be necessary for her to take over the management of the New Madison hotel and perhaps remain in charge for a year or until some other arrangement could be made. The application for a bar license which had been made by her deceased husband was therefore withdrawn and a new one in her own name substituted. The new law requiring fifteen days' prior notice, publication in a newspaper, etc., will work a hardship to her inasmuch as it will be impossible for the common council to take action on her application, along with the others, a week from Monday, and unless some special meeting is held for the purpose, it may be necessary for her to close the bar for two weeks following the expiration of the old permit at midnight, July 5.

and three more long months of it. Are you going to spend most of this time at home? If you are, why not make a room, a cool, comfortable and pleasant room, an out-door room, of your porch? VUDOR PORCH SHADES make it cool. They screen out the heat and glare of the sun, still let in the breeze, thus giving your porch a good CIRCULATION OF CLEAN, COOL AIR. They let in plenty of light so one can read or sew. They shut out the view from the street but not from the porch, giving as much privacy and seclusion as any room in the house. VUDOR PORCH SHADES are made of wide strips of tough linden wood, firmly bound with strong seine twine. They are stained with WATER-PROOF colors, in green and brown in various effects. With ordinary care will last for years. Easy to raise or lower, can be rolled up to any desired height or even out of sight. The regular sizes are 4, 6, 8 and 10 feet wide, 7 ft. 8 in. long, but additional sizes can be had on short notice. Prices $2.25, $3.00, $4.00, $5.50. Special sizes at a small additional cost. What could one desire more than a porch fitted with VUDOR PORCH SHADES and a

Vudor Re-Enforced Hammock

A hammock that is all that it is claimed to be. Not a one season sort, but one made to last, one that will last years. The bed of the Vudor Hammock is woven gradually heavier toward the middle, making it strongest where the most wear comes. This is an exclusive, patented feature found in no other hammock. Other points that give THE VUDOR double the life of ordinary hammocks are the strong hardwood spreaders at the head and foot, the sun-proof colors, costing twice as much as colors used in most other hammocks, and the EQUALIZED CORDING at the head and foot. These cords are put on under high tension, insuring equal distribution of strain; this is also a feature found only in the Vudor Hammock. They are made in eight grades, in many beautiful and pleasing designs and color combinations. Prices range from $2.00 up, depending on the quality. The same care and skill are used in making the cheapest as are used in making the highest priced.

Vudor Chair Hammock

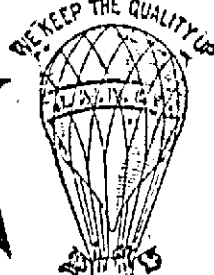

is the easiest, the most comfortable porch seat you ever sat on. See illustration at left. It combines the comfort of the big easy chair with the gentle swaying motion of a hammock. It conforms to every curve of the body, no matter what position you assume in it. It can instantly be adjusted from a reclining to a sitting position, or can be raised or lowered to any height from the floor, making it safe for the children to climb in and out without danger of their being hurt. Vudor Chair Hammocks are very simple in construction and weigh but a few pounds, yet they are made so strong that the heaviest persons may sit in them without danger of their breaking. It can be hung up out of the way when not in use, taking up very little room. Complete with pillow $3.50. A porch equipped with Vudor Porch Shades and a Vudor Re-enforced or Chair Hammock, or all three, would become the most used room of the house, in fact it would be a veritable living room of the whole family. We hang them free in any part of the city. See them in our window.

DEFINITELY FIX THE AGE LIMITS

NEW STATE LAW RELATIVE TO CHILD LABOR IN THE STATE.

EVEN HOURS ARE LIMITED

Special Attention Paid to the Youth of Wisconsin—Divorce Laws
Also Altered.

There are two legislative enactments which became laws last week and are of peculiar interest to the people of our city and state. One is what is known as the child labor law and the second is the new divorce law. A brief statement of each of these laws will be not only interesting but instructive to the people of the community.

Children under sixteen years of age cannot be employed at any dangerous machinery nor at any dangerous work which is injurious to health. Such a child cannot work at running an elevator, a steam boiler or in any other employment dangerous to life or injurious to health. He cannot be employed in a cigar factory nor in a tannery, and generally speaking he is not permitted to operate or work in or around a circular or band saw, wood-shaper, planer, moulder, laundry machinery or any dangerous machinery.

Between the ages of fourteen and sixteen, children can be employed in factories at work which is not prohibited, by obtaining a written permit from the factory inspector or from the county or municipal judge of our county. This permit, however, cannot be granted until there is exhibited and filed with the factory inspector, county or municipal judge to whom the application is made, a written recommendation of the principal of the school which said child has attended. It is absolutely necessary that the principal of the school attended by such child give the child a written recommendation authorizing its employment before the permit can be issued. It is then necessary for the child to appear in person before one of the officers who can grant a written permit and file with him this recommendation. This, however, is not all that is necessary—the child must also produce to the officer granting the permit a baptismal or confirmation certificate. In case this cannot be done, one of the parents of the child must make oath, before such officer who grants the permit, as to the age of the child.

Hours of Work Limited
If these things are all done, and the child appears to be in good health and has some employment, which is not prohibited by the law, and is not dangerous to his health or morals, a permit can then be granted, authorizing such child to be employed between the hours of six in the morning and nine at night, not more than ten hours in any one day, nor more than six days in a week, nor more than fifty-five hours in any one week.

The principals of all schools will be furnished with blanks on which they can make their recommendations when a child of their school comes to them. So that all children desiring permits should first go to the principal of the school at which it last attended. If this principal is absent or away from the city, such children should go to the office of the city superintendent of schools, who has a record of the child's school life.

Permits to work during vacation can be granted to children between twelve and fourteen years of age. Such children must make like application to the principal of their school for a written recommendation. Children of this age cannot work in factories either in vacation or at any other time. Such work is absolutely prohibited to them. The only employment they can engage in is office or store work or general messenger service, and then only during such hours as their permit licenses them to.

There is but one occupation under the law which all children, regardless of age can be employed at, and that is farm work. There are no restrictions, excepting that a child under fourteen must attend school, but at all times when not in attendance at school under fourteen such child can live and work on a farm without any legal restrictions. And when over fourteen he can do so continuously without a permit.

Divorce Law

The important features of the new divorce legislation are, first, that except adultery or bigamy be charged, no divorce can be obtained unless the party seeking to obtain the same shall have been a bona fide resident of this state for two years before the commencement of the action. Second, in the event the court should find that a divorce be granted he enters an interlocutory judgment fixing the status of the parties, but such judgment shall not be effective until after one year from the date of such decree, at this time the court may if he sees fit, revise or modify his former judgment, or he may enter a final judgment. This final judgment entered one year after the granting of the interlocutory judgment is really the decree or judgment of divorce. And until such final judgment is entered there is no absolute divorce. Third, the law provides for the appointment of a divorce-counsel on behalf of the state, and in divorces which are not honestly contested and in all default cases, he appears and represents the public before the court.

Suspicious-Looking Pair Who Inspected
Jewelry at F. E. Williams'
Store Arrested by Officer
Fanning.

Shortly after Charles Noyes, a young man employed as clerk at F. E. Williams' jewelry store on West Milwaukee street, had opened up the establishment at eight o'clock this morning, two rather suspicious-looking characters who had just been shaved in a neighboring barber-shop entered and asked to be shown some gold rings. They were quickly followed by one of the barbers who demanded the return of a morning paper which they had carried with them. The paper was returned with apologies and the pair devoted themselves to an examination of the jewelry.

There were 21 rings in the tray and when they turned to depart, without making any purchase, Mr. Noyes made a hasty count and discovered that the collection only totaled 19. He ran out the door and called to the men. They stopped and made a pretense of being very indignant when he insinuated that they were guilty of theft. After vigorously denying the charge they resumed their stroll. Noyes called upon a young man named Klech who works in a neighboring store to telephone for the police and sent another friend on the trail of the strangers.

Officer Patrick Fanning responded to the call and overtook and arrested them near the high school. They gave their names as James Moran and Charles Schmidt and denied all knowledge of any theft. The rings could not be found after a careful search at the station but the circumstantial evidence is very strong against them and they were kept behind the bars. Nor did a survey of the premises near the high school bring to light the lost jewelry. The two missing ruby doublet rings were worth about $15.

SHOT ROCKETS THRO' BUNK-HOUSE PANES

Lawless Gang of Monterey Youths Made Night Eventful for Hungarians Sewerworkers.

Already, in the outskirts of the city, the Fourth of July fireworks business has reached serious proportions. Foreman C. W. Vandorale of the People's Construction Co., which is building the main outlet sewer, lodged a complaint at the police station this morning against a gang of lawless Monterey youths who engaged in an effort, about half-past eleven o'clock last evening, to make life more varied and interesting for the Hungarians ditch-diggers who are building in an old blacksmith shop near the intersection of Western and Center avenues. According to Mr. Vandorale, the young toughs, ranging in ages from 15 to 19 years, fired sky-rockets through the windows of the bunk house and when this ammunition gave out, hurled rocks against the walls of the building.

Though none of the sewerworkers were hurt, there was little sleep after a hard day's toil. They were greatly incensed at the unprovoked attack and according to their interpreters do not propose to "stand for" any repetition of the outrage. To that end some of them have armed themselves with revolvers and threaten to let a streak of lamp-light through the next mischievous-maker who approaches the place.

Officer John Brown was called to the Jackson street bridge last evening to attend to a band of infants who were making night hideouts with dynamite canisters. The party who complained against them runs a store at the foot of Jackson street and sold the noise-producers to many of the children.

So far as is known there is no ordinance on the books forbidding this sort of premature celebration and the police have little authority to act, except in cases like that of the malicious attack on the bunkhouse. With reference to the last-named episode, some names have been given to the officers and arrests are likely to follow.

MISS PAULSON HAS GIVEN UP TEACHING

Instructor in Algebra at High School Will Be Much Missed—Miss Foley Also to Leave.

When the scholars of the high school resume their studies in the fall two of the instructors of the past year will be missing from the roster of teachers.

Miss Emma Paulson, who for the past twenty years has faithfully served as a teacher in the Janesville high school, has resigned from the teaching force and will take an indefinite leave-off, as she feels that she needs a rest. Thirteen of the twenty years spent in the service of the Janesville public schools have been at the present high school building, the other seven being spent at the old high school, now the Jefferson school. During that time hundreds of pupils have received a good knowledge of algebra under her instruction and to them and to many others, the loss of this member of the faculty causes genuine regret. As her successor, Miss Miller, who has been teaching in the Monroe schools, has been hired by the board of education. The latter is well prepared to carry on the work which Miss Paulson has given up.

Miss Mae Foley, who during her short stay has become quite popular at the high school, is the other member of the faculty who will not come back in the fall. She has had a number of tempting offers from other cities and will take one of these. Therefore, Miss Foley, a recent graduate of DePaul college, will take her position as instructor in branches of English work.

The other members of the teaching force will be the same.

THE TAX PLAN IS PRESENTED

ALDRICH LAYS CORPORATION AMENDMENT BEFORE THE SENATE.

DUTY ON SHOES INCREASED

Senator Bailey Assails Tobacco Trust for Small Packages and Galley Exploits His Votes—House Passes the Census Bill.

Washington, June 25.—Senator Aldrich today presented to the senate the corporation tax amendment agreed upon at the White House conference and approved by the finance committee. Debate on it probably will not start for a week.

Amendments increasing the duty on shoes from 15 to 20 per cent. and increasing the duty on sole leather from 5 to 10 per cent. and, in addition, the lower figure representing the house rate in each case, were adopted. An amendment increasing the duty on collodion was also adopted.

Beveridge Raps Tobacco Trust. Senator Beveridge talked for about four hours and was followed by Senator Bailey at almost as great length. Senator Newlands was the last of the orators of the day, and he had not long surrounded the floor when the senate adjourned.

The theme of Senator Beveridge's discourse was an amendment proposed by him regarding the size of tobacco packages. He contended that while the size of the packages had been reduced during the Spanish war with the end in view of compelling the purchaser to pay the war tax, those sizes have never been restored nor the prices reduced notwithstanding the removal of the tax, thus practically giving the tobacco manufacturers, and especially the tobacco trust, the advantage of the tax even though it has not been in operation for about nine years.

He declared that the trust had influenced legislation for this purpose and asserted that it was being benefited to the extent of many million dollars a year.

Bailey Justifies His Vote. Senator Bailey talked about free raw material for the purpose of justifying his vote as a Democrat against the free entry of iron ore, lumber and hides. He declared that before the Cleveland administration the established Democratic policy was in opposition to the free admission of free raw material, and undertook to show that such a policy was really a part of the Republican scheme of high protection.

Senator Newlands gave his attention to the income tax question, devoting special consideration to the president's recommendation for a corporation tax. He discussed at length the legislation of 1898 providing for a tax upon the gross receipts of oil refineries, on which the Supreme court and which is relied upon by the president as a precedent for the proposed corporation tax. He pointed out especially that the law of 1898 was applicable, not to corporations alone, but to every person, firm, company and corporation carrying on such business.

Senator Pomeroy today presented an amendment to the tariff bill levying a duty of one-half of a cent a gallon on crude oil and 20 per cent. ad valorem on refined oil. Senator Pomeroy is confident that he will have a majority for the passage of this amendment.

House Passes Census Bill. On the eve of the expiration of the current fiscal year, the house authorized an emergency appropriation of $10,000,000 for defraying the expenses of taking the thirteenth decennial census. In presenting the bill for that purpose, Mr. Tawney, chairman of the committee on appropriations, explained the situation with respect to the permanent census measure still in conference, and announced that unless the money was forthcoming the census bureau would be compelled to suspend all business next Wednesday. Notwithstanding this warning, the bill met with much opposition and it was only finally passed after Mr. Mason of Arkansas had forced a roll call on a point of no quorum.

"On her part, so fagged and weary, she thought that it might be well to let him go with outstretched, compassionate hands and a low, pitiful cry of concern, forgetting entirely of that which he himself had forgotten—the emotion she had betrayed on parting."

"Oh, nothing wrong," he hastened to reassure her, with a sorry ghost of his familiar grin. "Only I have lost Hobbs and the satchel with your things, and there's no sign yet of Mr. Calendar. We can feel pretty comfortable now, and—and I thought it time we had something like a meal."

The narrative of his adventure which he delivered over their dinner in a fourchette contained no mention of his relief at the American consulate or the search he had conducted during Hobbs' disappearance. The one could not concern her; the other would seem to be a bid for her sympathy. He omitted it a fortunate thing that the man's knife had been keen enough to penetrate the cloth of his sleeve without tearing it. The slit it had left was barely noticeable, and he purposely directed the girl with flashes of humorous description, so that they discussed both meal and episode in a mood of wholesome merriment.

It was concluded, all too soon for the taste of either, by the waiter's announcement that the steamer was on the point of sailing.

Outwardly composed, inwardly quaking, they boarded the packet, meeting with no adventure whatsoever—if we are to except the circumstance that when the restaurant bill was settled and the girl had punctiliously surrendered her change with the tickets Kirkwood found himself in possession of precisely 1 franc and 20 centimes.

He groaned in spirit to think how differently he might have been fixed had he not in his infatuated spirit of honesty been so anxious to give Calendar more than ample value for his money.

An inexorable anxiety held them both near the gangway until it was cast off and the boat began to draw away from the pier. Then, and not till then, did the unimpressive, small figure of a man detach itself from the shield of a pile of luggage and advance to the pier head. No second glance was needed to identify Mr. Hobbs, and until the perspective dwarfed him indistinguishably he was to be seen alternately waving Kirkwood frantically and blowing violent kisses to Miss Calendar from the tips of his soiled fingers.

So he had escaped arrest. At first by turns indignant and relieved to realize that thereafter they were to move in scenes in which his hateful shadow would not form an essentially component part, subsequently Kirkwood felt a prey to prophetic terrors. It was not alone fear or retribution that had induced Hobbs to relinquish his personation, or so Kirkwood had become convinced, if the man's calculation had allowed for them the least fraction of a chance to escape apprehension on the further shores of the channel, nor fears nor threats would have prevented him from sailing with the fugitives. Far from having left danger behind them on the continent, Kirkwood believed in his secret heart that they were but going to encounter it beneath the smoky pull of London.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

As the evening boat train from Dover swung on toward Charing Cross for perhaps the tenth time in the course of his journey Kirkwood withdrew his gaze from the window and turned to the girl, a question ready framed upon his lips.

"Are you quite sure?" he began, and then, after the clear and penetrating perception in the brown eyes that smiled into his from under their level brows, he stammered and left the query uncompleted.

Continuing to regard him steadily and smilingly, Dorothy shook her head in playful denial and protest. "Do you know," she commented, "that this is about the fifth repetition of that identical question within the last quarter hour?"

"How do you know what I meant to say?" he demanded, staring.

"I can see it in your eyes. Besides, you've talked and thought of nothing else since we left the boat. Won't you believe me, please, when I say there's absolutely not a soul in London to whom I could go and ask for shelter? I don't think it's very nice of you to be so openly anxious to get rid of me."

This latter was so essentially underscored and so artlessly insincere that he must needs, of course, treat it with all seriousness.

ly, in the late afternoon that he would this time be able to control both mind and tongue—"what I mean is I'd be glad to go on serving you in any way I might to the end of time if you'd give me!"

He left the declaration inconclusive—a stroke of diplomacy that would have graced an infinitely more adept wooer. But he used it all unconsciously. "O Lord!" he groaned in spirit. "Worse and more of it! Why in thunder can't I say the right thing right?"

"Dear Mr. Kirkwood," she said gently, bending forward as if to read between the lines anxiety had graven on his countenance, "won't you tell me, please, what it can be that so worries you?"

In exasperation he interrupted almost rudely. "It's only this—I'm strapped."

"Strapped?" She knitted her brows over this fresh specimen of American slang.

"Flat strapped—busted—broke—on my uppers—down and out." He reeled off synonyms without a smile. "I haven't enough money to pay cab fare across the town."

"Oh!" she interjected, enlightened. "To say nothing of taking us to Chiltern. I couldn't buy you a glass of water if you were thirsty. There isn't a soul on earth within half a mile who would trust me with a quarter—I mean a shilling—across London bridge. I'm the original 'luckless wonder' and the only genuine Jewish extent."

With a face the hue of fire he coughed his eyebrows askew and attempted to laugh unconcernedly to hide his bitter shame. "I've led you out of the frying pan into the fire, and I don't know what to do. Please call me names."

"Oh, poor Mr. Kirkwood! And it's all because of me! You've beggared yourself!"

"Not precisely. I was beggared to begin with." He hastened to disclaim the extravagant generosity of which she accused him. "I had only three or four pounds to my name that night we met. I haven't told you—"

"You've told me nothing, nothing whatever about yourself," she said reproachfully.

"I didn't want to bother you with my troubles. I tried not to talk about myself. You know I was an American, but I'm worse than that. I'm a Californian—from San Francisco." He tried unsuccessfully to make light of it.

"I told you I was the 'luckless wonder.' If I'd ever had any luck I would have stored a little money away. As it was, I lived on my income, left my principal in France, and when the earthquake came, it wiped me out completely."

"And you were going home that night we made your meeting?"

"It was my own fault, and I'm glad this blessed minute that I did miss it. Nice sort I'd have been to go off, and leave you at the mercy—"

"Please! I want to think. I'm trying to remember how much you've gone through!"

STATE DEPARTMENT INTERFERES IN INTERNATIONAL MARRIAGE.

"Countess Bettini di Molise" nee Miss Hattie Russell of New York. At left, Huntington Wilson of the State Department; at right, Henry White, ambassador to France, the two diplomats halted the wedding.

New York.—A most unique diplomatic problem arose when Huntington Wilson, of the state department, was appealed to in prevent the marriage of a well known New York lady to a foreign count. While no definite information is given out at Washington as to the identification of the parties, circumstantial evidence shows beyond a doubt that Miss Isabella Garwood, of this city, was the lady, and "Count" Bettini di Molise the supposed foreign nobleman.

Miss Garwood's sister, of New York and Washington, appeared first to the police authorities in Washington and upon their refusal to take up the case she went to the state department, where the evidence laid before Huntington Wilson was of so strong a nature that he telegraphed by secret code to Ambassador Henry White in France to prevent the marriage, and this was done.

It is now definitely established that "Count" Bettini di Molise would have become a bigamist had the ceremony been performed. He already has a wife, "Countess" di Molise, in this country.

Owing to the notoriety brought about by the international complication, the "Countess di Molise" left suddenly for the country with her brother, but her friends and those of her husband were prone to talk freely of their affairs.

These interviews brought to light these salient facts:

He married Hattie Russell, a prominent young society woman of Elmira, at Martinelli's Hotel, Sixteenth street and Fifth avenue, in 1883.

The ceremony was performed by a Roman Catholic priest.

The affair was a private one, but one of the most conspicuous witnesses was the editor of Eco Italiano, then the leading Italian newspaper.

The couple had a child a year after their marriage and lived apparently happily together until five years ago, when the "Count" went to Spain to attend a medical conference, from which he never returned.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

THE mother who would deliberately handicap her child doesn't exist. But the mother who unintentionally handicaps her child by cherishing his fears and pampering his dislikes is legion. Fears and dislikes are things to be gotten rid of, not cherished.

The child who is allowed to grow up constantly pampering and favoring some pet fear will either have the struggle of getting rid of it when it has grown into a very part of him, or the handicap of suffering from it all his life.

The other day I went shopping with a friend of mine and her daughter, a girl of about 18. We went into a store and inquired for the millinery department. We were told that it was on the fifth floor. I started in the direction of the elevator but my friend drew me towards the stairway. "Louise never rides in elevators," she explained, "she has always been afraid of them ever since she was a little bit of a girl."

So we climbed the four flights of stairs, and during the afternoon we climbed about forty more. At the end of the day I returned home more tired than I had been for weeks, simply as the result of Louise's dislike of elevators.

If the girl's fear had been founded on any danger that she had undergone or any cause of discomfort that she experienced I could have understood, but her mother assured me that neither of these things was the case.

It was simply a childish fear cherished and pampered.

And the worst part of the whole thing to me was that much as she must have suffered from it, my friend seemed to take a kind of pride in Louise's peculiarity.

Half, no, three-quarters of the blame for fear kowtowed to instead of vanquished, belonged to that mother.

Unless Louise marries someone with a firm hand and enough common sense to put an end to her whim—for it is really little more than that—she will probably walk upstairs all her life and thereby sacrifice just that strength and thus on the altar of her selfish fear.

The road your children must travel isn't apt to be a very easy one. You mothers who've traveled it know that all too well. And every fear you teach them to pamper you make it that much rougher. And every fear you help them conquer, you make the road a bit smoother.

Now which would you rather do?

Ruth Cameron

He Won.

It was a Marathon race with 10 contestants. One of them was a little top-shouldered, bow-legged man with a wheeze to him, and men who looked him over and to each other.

"Why, the man can't run a mile! What sort of a trainer has he that he is entered in a race like this?"

And the trainer, overhearing such criticism, explained:

"Gentlemen, I know my business. My man is not much to look at and under ordinary circumstances there would be no show for him, but I have a card up my sleeve. Put a few words on my man if you want champagne to drink for the rest of the summer."

The public was mystified, but not convinced. No man would put a dollar on the little man. Even after the race was on and it was seen that he was well up with the leaders nobody would speak a word for his chances. On the contrary, when the race became hot and he kept dropping back there were cries of "Take him off!" There was yet two miles to go and the little man held the eleventh place and was being enticed, when his trainer and a woman came to the front and the woman cried out:

"No, I have found you at last! Jim Norton, I will run you down!"

The little man saw and heard, and as his face went pale his legs began to play. The woman was the wife from whom he had fled three years before. He sprang into tenth place—eleventh—seventh. A great cheer rent the air. "Who's your dear of the woods he picked up No. 6—No. 5—No. 4. Other cheers. He passed Nos. 3 and 2, and then with a yell of fear as the woman once more called his name he shot to the front and the race was his. It's all in having a trainer who knows your family history."

LUCK.

John Kleins causes arrest of detective in sensational charges in connection with the recent Pittsburgh graft scandal.

Mrs. John Kleins and her husband, Councilman John F. Kleins, recently convicted and sentenced to serve several years in the penitentiary.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—If the accusations of Mrs. Kleins be proven true, Pittsburgh will have a most unusual record of graft. Councilman John F. Kleins was recently convicted of accepting bribes. This week Mr. Kleins's wife had warrants sworn out for the arrest of two detectives and three witnesses in the Voters Civic League, which was responsible for the exposure and conviction in the graft case.

In the information against the man it is charged they accepted a monetary consideration to give certain evidence before the grand jury.

It is said that two of the men for whom warrants were sworn out have made written confessions admitting that they were guilty of the crime.

The whole matter is being sifted by the grand jury, and if the claims of Mrs. Kleins are sustained it may lead to a new trial for her husband and possibly to his ultimate acquittal.
